VIENNA, April 23.

COUNT Podewils, the Pruſſian envoy here, has given aſſurances, that the king his maſter does not intend to give the leaſt obſtruction to the march of the Ruſſians, as they are not to paſs thro' any of his Territories.

Vienna, April 27. Every thing is getting ready for the journey of their imperial majeſties into Moravia; and we are aſſured, that after they have ſeen the Ruſſian forces paſs in review, thoſe auxiliaries will take the route of Bohemia, and, after traverſing that kingdom in three columns, will enter the upper palatinate by Waleunken, Egra, and Aſch, from whence they will continue their march thro' Voghtland into the empire.

Berlin, May 1. The reports which have prevailed, that the king was reſolved to march ten Battalions into the principality of Eaſt-Frieſland are without Foundation, and only ariſe from the orders that were given to change the Garriſons of ſome places.

Duſſeldorp, May 5. The king of Pruſſia hath granted a paſſage thro' the dutchy of Cleves for the 48000 troops of Wolfenbuttel in the ſervice of the States General. They write from that dutchy, that ſuch numbers of the ſubjects of the united provinces retire thither, that lodgings cannot be found for them.

Bruges, May 5. The moſt Chriſtian king is ſoon expected in theſe provinces, freſh ſets of horſes having been placed at different ſtages for that end. There have been ſeized by order of the court, all the ſhips in this and the other towns of Flanders, part of which has been already carried into Ghent; the Motive for this is unknown to us.

Breda, May 7. We have received advice, that a detachment of huſſars having advanced beyond Ruckween and Niſpen, had a ſmart ſkirmiſh with a body of Graſſins near Huybergen; that the latter were put to flight, and had their captain, a cornet, and ſeveral ſoldiers killed, and ſeventeen men taken priſoners.

LONDON

April 19. The Parliament of Paris once enjoyed the happy privilege of addreſſing their kings, and remonſtrating againſt the abuſe of power or any miſtakes in Government. Their repreſentations often brought wicked Miniſters to Juſtice, and rectified grievances either wickedly or ignorantly laid upon the ſubjects. The Firmneſs and uncorrupted Integrity of the Members of that auguſt Society, did honour to the body, and proved a bridle to the rapacity of their Princes ſo far down as the laſt of the Harry's: But ever ſince that time they hurried into ſlavery and oppreſſion; the Tyrannick reign of the grand Monarque revitted their chains, and ſealed up their Mouths; and even now, under the gracious Government of Louis the Well-beloved, they dare hardly give Vent to their ſighs, or open their Mouths but to praiſe the Meaſures they ſeem to complain of——This we thought neceſſary to premiſe, before we give our Readers the following extraordinary extract of the laſt Remonſtrance of the Parliament of Paris to the French King on the new Impoſts.

——We are ſenſible of all our happineſs in being truſted with the Adminiſtration of Juſtice under a King, who conſiders himſelf as the Father of his Subjects, and can feel for the Miſery of a People whom he loves and who ought to be the dearer to him as they have given him on all Occaſions Proofs of the moſt perfect Duty and Submiſſion. Far be it from us, to make any Exceptions to ſuch juſt Sentiments.——The many Trials they have been put to muſt anſwer for their Sincerity. The ſeveral Edicts and Declarations which your Parliament hath verified ſince the beginning of the War, ſufficiently ſhew that you are the richeſt and moſt powerful Sovereign in Europe, becauſe you have the moſt dutiful Subjects: But, Sir, all Things have their Bounds and Limits; and though our Obedience knows none but thoſe of your Power, yet there are Periods at which which the power of Kings will ſtop of itſelf becauſe it always directed [monſtrous Aſſertion] by Juſtice and Wiſdom. The fewer Obſtacles they meet with in the Execution of their Will, the more they are afraid to exhauſt their Forces.

None of us is ignorant of the extraordinary Expence which the preſent ſituation of Affairs require of you, and we are ſenſible of the full Extent of our Duty on this ſcore. Obliged to ſacrifice our very Lives to the ſafety of the State, how could we refuſe it the Tender of our Fortunes? But 'tis not the Impoſts themſelves that now alarm us; their Nature and Duration only affright us, &c.

April 28. The letters of the 13th inſt. mention, that their commerce was ſo much interrupted up the Levant, &c. that their Merchants were greatly diſtreſſed; and that, to add to their diſtreſs, no leſs than fourteen of their ſhips were within a few days taken in their paſſage from the Levant, and ſome carried to Leghorn and others to Port-Mahon.

It appears, by letters from Rome, March 9, that 712,000 Crowns have been expended by the Pope, for the Uſe of the Pretender in his Expedition to Scotland.

May 5. The Engliſh have intercepted and taken a Spaniſh ſhip with Guns, Stores, Ammunition, &c. from Ferrol, bound to the Havannah.

From the Boſton EVENING POST.

CHARLES-TOWN, in South Carolina, May 18.

We hear that Mr. Knowles, (who carried the Aldborough with him from Boſton to the Weſt-Indies, after ſhe had carreen'd there) had appointed a new commander of that ſhip, and removed capt. Innis into the Warwick of 60 guns.---Here it will not be improper to take notice, that by Mr. Knowles's taking the Aldborough away, from this important ſtation, [when the Adventure was diſabled] our coaſts and trade have been left expoſed to the inſults and depredations of the enemies privateers for near nine months, during which time, among a great number of other prizes, ſome have been taken even in ſight of this Harbour, with conſiderable quantities of goods for the Indian Trade; by which means, the enemy have been enabled to ſupply our Indians with goods, and to ingratiate themſelves with their chiefs, by large preſents made at our coſt.—'Tis ſaid capt. Innis had leave from the board of Admiralty, to go to Boſton to careen the Aldborough, but we ſhall leave it to our ſuperiors to enquire, whence it came to paſs, that ſuch leave was either applied for or obtained, ſeeing all the ſhips that have heretofore been ſtationed here, conſtantly did careen here. If it was on account of the great expence that attended the careening that ſhip upon her firſt coming to this ſtation (when capt. Utting commanded her) it is ſurely worth the conſideration of the Lords of the Admiralty, to what cauſe the ſame was truly owing; that we may not, by this precedent, be expoſed to the like Inconveniencies for the future.

[The Aldborough lay in Nantaſket Road a Month or two after ſhe was repair'd and fitted for the ſea, and was then taken away by Mr. Knowles, as were the ſhips from ſeveral other ſtations: What better End they have anſwer'd in the Weſt-Indies, than they might have done by protecting the Trade on their own proper Stations, we have not yet heard.——Our Carolina Typographer ſeems to think much that their ſtation ſhips ſhould come to Boſton to careen, and to be ſo long from their duty there: But pray, Brother Type, who ſhould know beſt, you, or their commander's? do you think we have not more polite Company, and finer Ladies here, than can be expected in Carolina? or, would you never let the Gentlemen go to different parts to divert themſelves, and improve their ſtock of good breeding, by handing the Ladies about the ſtreets, and in bowing and cringing to them? Surely you are not ſo unconſcionable! 'Tis well known the ſea is not every commander's Element, nor do many of 'em enjoy ſo good a State of Health at ſea as on Shore, nor are they able to endure the nauſeous ſmell of Pitch and Tar, and ſometimes of gun powder too. Beſides they cannot bear to be coop'd up in a ſhip, ſurrounded by a parcel of rugged unpoliſh'd Tars.——My Lord marquefs of Halifax, in his Rough Draught of a new Model at ſea, ſays, "The Gentlemen ſhall not be capable of bearing office at ſea, "except they be Tarpaulins too; that is to ſay, except they are "ſo trained up by a continued habit of living at ſea, that they "may have a right to be admitted free denizons of Wapping. "They will find it will take off the objections which are now "thrown upon them, of ſetting up for Maſters, without ever "being Apprentices; or at leaſt without having ſerved out "their time.—If the Gentlemen ſmelleth as much of Pitch and "Tar, as thoſe that were ſwadled up in ſail-cloth, his "having an Eſcutcheon will be ſo far from doing him Harm, "that it will ſet him upon the advantage ground: It will draw "a real reſpect to his quality when ſo ſupported, and give him "an Influence and Authority, infinitely ſuperior to that which "the meer ſea-man can ever pretend to.—When a Gentleman "hath learned how to obey, he will grow much fitter to com-"mand.—To expect that quality alone ſhould waft men up "into places and employments, is as unreaſonable, as to think, "that a ſhip, becauſe it is carved and gilded, ſhould be fit to "go to ſea without ſails and tackling."]

BOSTON.

Extract of a Letter from a Perſon who went Paſſenger in Capt. Keating, who ſail'd from hence laſt Winter in a Brigantine, as a Packet, for England, dated Fyal, March 3. 1747-8.

"I Embrace this Opportunity of writing to you by a Schooner bound to Piſcataqua, to give you a ſmall narrative of the misfortunes we met with ſince we left Boſton, which was on Wedneſday the 6th day of January:—The next morning we ſail'd from Nantaſket, and about four days after met with very hard gales of wind, the ſea running as high as our maſts heads, one broke in upon us, and carried away Mr. Hodge, the Maſter of the Canterbury, as he was ſtanding upon the Quarter-Deck; Mr. Whitrong, an Officer belonging to Louiſburg, William Mayberry Mate, William Bryant and John Butler, ſailors, were alſo waſh'd over-board and drowned together; and had we been all upon deck, we ſhould every one of us have ſhared the ſame fate: The Maſter of the Veſſel and Boatſwain being at the Helm were both of them waſh'd over board at the ſame time, but were hove in again upon the Quarter-Deck by the aſcent of the ſea; the Maſter of the Veſſel's Thigh and Ankle were broke againſt the Boom of the Mainſail, by the Force of the Sea, and was in a moſt terrible condition, not having any ſurgeon to ſet his Bones, and nothing but a little Rum to bathe it with.—The Veſſel lay with her Gunnel under water for the ſpace of an hour, her boat floated upon deck, and the ſea making a free paſſage over us, having then between ſix and ſeven foot water in the hold, ſo I leave you to judge what a deplorable proſpect we had before us, not knowing how ſoon we ſhou'd ſink into Eternity together; every time we ſaw a ſea coming we were obliged to run down into the ſteerage, to ſcreen ourſelves from the Waves; at laſt we got upon deck, and cut away the Foremaſt, which carried away the Main top-Maſt and the Head of the Main-maſt, then the veſſel righted, which ſav'd our lives: We then lay to the mercy of the ſea driven up and down, the Maſts and ſails being all over board; in this ſad condition we lay for a fortnight before we could get any Canvas upon her to make ſail for any Port; but after we had cut away the raft from the ſhip's ſides, all hands of us took our ſpells at the pumps 'till we had pump'd her dry, which took us from ten o'clock 'till two in the afternoon; all our Fingers were in a moſt terrible condition a pumping, for as ſoon as the Water came in upon deck it freez'd, ſo that our Fingers were froſt bitten: We had but three men left of the ſhip's company to do duty, ſo that we were obliged to take Watch and Watch for the ſecurity of our lives.—It was ſix weeks before we made any land, and ſeven before we ſaw a ſhip.—We are now arriv'd at Fyal one of the Weſtern Iſlands belonging to the Portugueſe, but can't tell when we ſhall get from hence, it being very difficult to get Maſts, Sails, &c."

WILLIAMSBURG, Auguſt 4.

We have certain advice from Norfolk, That two or three Men, belonging to His Majeſty's Ship Fowey, Capt. Drape, were arrived there, and give Information, that the ſaid Ship, bound to Virginia from the Weſt-Indies, is unfortunately loſt on the Keys, in the Gulph of Florida; but that the Officers and moſt of the Men were ſaved. That the Fowey had a few Days before her Misfortune, met with and taken a Spaniſh Regiſter Ship, with upwards of a Million of Pieces of Eight on board; which valuable Prize was alſo unfortunately loſt, with the Fowey, on the ſame Rocks; but that the Fowey's Men had ſaved about 60,000 Pieces of Eight out of the Wreck. That ſome of the Officers and Men had got to South-Carolina, and intended ſhortly to Virginia, with the Money that was ſaved.

Since our laſt we have had ſeveral Reports of a General Peace being concluded between Great Britain, France, Spain, and the other Powers at War; but have receiv'd no Certainty of the Truth: However, as there appears great Probability of it, by the following Depoſitions, which we have been favour'd with, this Day, from Norfolk, we publiſh them verbatim, that the Readers may form their Judgments thereon.

Norfolk Borough, ſs.

CApt. John Northcott, Commander of the Ship Raleigh, being of lawful Age, on ſolemn Oath declares, that he ſail'd from Antigua the fourteenth Day of July, bound for Virginia; and as he your Deponent was coming out of the Harbour of St. John's, he met with a Ship, who came from Leghorn, up the Streights, going into the said Harbour from Sea. Your Deponent aſk'd the Maſter, (whoſe Name he has forgot) what News? He anſwered, That it was a general Peace; Then your Deponent aſk'd him again in a more particular Manner, if it was Peace with Spain, He ſaid, That it was, and that it took Place the ſame Time it did with France; and that the ſaid Ship had twenty ſeven Days Paſſage to that Harbour of St. John's, in Antigua; and further your Deponent ſaith not.

John Northcott.

Sworn before me this third Day of Auguſt, 1748.

Joſiah Smith.

[The other Affidavit was made by Matthias Miller, Maſter of the Raleigh, and contains the ſame as Capt. Northcott's.]
